SWISS KIWANIAN IS PASSIONATE ABOUT CLASSIC CARS AND GAS PUMPS.

STORY AND PHOTOS BY KASEY JACKSON

Martin Jaggi sits in his office inside the Energy Park Event Museum in Laupersdorf, Switzerland, with a smile on his face. Someone just mentioned the gorgeous view he has outside of his window—a sweeping stretch of grass, perfectly groomed, all but disappears as it slowly draws itself upward toward the Jura Mountains, located north of the Western Alps. Needless to say: it's very green. All of this is set against the no-cloud-to-be-seen blue sky.

"It's quite perfect," Jaggi says.

But visitors to the Energy Park Event Museum aren't only coming to Laupersdorf for the scenery outside. They're interested in what sits inside this building, on the floors below Jaggi's office.

"I collect gas pumps," he says. "I have a lot. Cars, too."

That's quite an understatement, immediately obvious upon entering the two-floor showroom that takes up most of the massive building's space. The building is Jaggi's home base for his multiple
